NAVY REVEALS FORMER LUXURY LINER MANHATTAN WAS BADLY DAMAGED AT SEA; 1,000 PASSENGERS AND CREW SAVED

Vessel, Now a Naval Transport, Caught Fire on September 3rd—Salvaged and Towed To An Atlantic Port—Two Warships, Cruiser and a Destroyer Went to Aid of Vessel

(By Hugo Speck, I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9.—The Navy today announced that the former luxury liner Manhattan, now a naval transport, caught fire and was severely damaged at sea, September 3rd, but that 1,000 passengers and the crew numbering between 600 and 700 all were saved.

The former $10,000,000 crack liner—now the U. S. S. Wakefield, weighing 24,289 tons—has been salvaged and towed to an Atlantic port, the Navy revealed.

Two warships, a cruiser and a destroyer surrounded the burning liner and through heroic measures the crews of the three naval vessels removed all the passengers and the blue jackets on the Wakefield. Several of the passengers and crew were injured, however.

The cause of the fire was not determined immediately, the Navy announced, and it was presumed that a naval board of inquiry would be named to investigate the blaze.

Pending such an investigation, naval officials declined to comment on the possibility that sabotage might have played a part in the fire.

The ship was en route to an East Coast port in convoy when fire of undetermined origin broke out on the deck levels and spread rapidly through the craft.

DOYLESTOWN, Sept. 9.—Announcement was made yesterday of the resignation of the Rev. Enoch S. Moore, for the past four years minister of the First Baptist Church, of Doylestown. He has accepted a call to the Riverside Baptist Church of Buffalo, N. Y., one of the largest congregations in that city. Rev. Moore was pastor of Brookdale Baptist Church of Bloomfield, N. J., before coming here. The retiring pastor is a veteran of World War No. 1, and was wounded in action. During his Doylestown pastorate the Baptist Church has been built up rapidly.

WOOL POOL OF 11,003 LBS. BREAKS COUNTY RECORD

117 Producers from Bucks and Montgomery Counties Join In The Pool

THREE BUCKS LEADERS

William H. Grundy Co., Inc., has purchased the Bucks - Montgomery County Cooperative Wool Pool representing the wool output of 117 producers. Sixty-three of the producers were from Bucks County and 54 from Montgomery County. The pool totaled 11,003 pounds and was sold to the highest bidder.

County Agent William F. Greenawalt, who said this year's pool is the largest in the history of the Bucks-Montgomery pool, reported 9559 pounds of medium wool were sold for 48.19 cents a pound, 857 pounds of rejections at 42 cents, and 236 pounds of fine wool at 38 cents to the well-known Philadelphia buyer.

The grading of the wool was done at the Bucks County Producers' Cooperative Live Poultry Auction Building in Doylestown by L. C. Madison, of Pennsylvania State College. He was assisted in the shipping by County Agent Greenawalt and Assistant County Agent William H. Wilson.

The largest producer was Howard Heyser, Norristown, R. D., who shipped 668 pounds.

The second largest producer was "Moreton Farms," Torresdale, Philadelphia county, with 613 pounds.

The three largest Bucks County wool producers were: first, Neshaminy Farms, Newtown, 395 pounds; second, Milton Johnson, Quakertown, 276 pounds; and third, Roy Munsell, Perkasie, 256 pounds.

The directors of the Bucks-Montgomery organization are: Walter Magnus Teller, Plumstead; Seth Van Pelt, Buckingham Valley; Frank Antonelli, National Farm School; Howard Heyser and H. S. Spieles, both of Norristown.

Police Say Man Arrested Has Been Annoying Women

WARMINSTER, Sept. 9.—With the arrest of John Werner, Jr., 25, of Memorial avenue, this place, Pennsylvania Motor Police say they have caught up with the man who has been terrorizing women and children of this community since June 30.

Charged with attempted burglary and a large number of cases of indecent exposure, Werner is in the Bucks County Prison awaiting trial. He was held without bail. He has a wife and two children.

DESSERT BRIDGE PARTY

A cookie sale will be conducted in connection with the party.

BUSES TO OPERATE SPECIAL TRIP TO FLEETWINGS PLANTS

Will Travel Via Beaver Dam Road, Buckley and Bath Streets

LEAVES PLANT NO. 2

Additional Buses May Be Placed on Schedule at Later Date

To better serve the group of "shift" workers, starting at Fleetwings, Inc., plants at 8.30 a. m., and to give service enroute, a special bus trip is arranged by Neibauer Bus Company locally for the morning hours.

A bus leaving Fleetwings Plant No. 2 at Green Lane at 7.55 a. m., will traverse Beaver Dam Road, Buckley street, Bath street and Otter street, to Mill street and the highway. This bus will then leave Bristol Pike and Mill street at 8.08 a. m., reaching Bristol Pike and Green Lane at 8.20, and Fleetwings Plant No. 2 at 8.25 o'clock.

"Possibly later there may be additional buses on this type of schedule," said a spokesman for Neibauer Company today. "Much depends on the service required as to whether any and how buses will make such a loop."

A few changes are made in the schedule, effective September 13th, the said schedule being changed mainly to give service to the 8.30 shift at the local aircraft factory. Better service is also given to those attempting to make train connections.

Stops are permitted, it is stated, on the route of the "loop" bus listed above. Thus families moving into the Bristol Terrace housing development on Beaver Dam Road, as well as other residents of the area will be benefited.

JUDGE ORDERS SAND CO. TO RESTORE LAND

United Sand and Gravel Co. Must Stop Excavating and Fill in Land

OTHER COURT CASES

DOYLESTOWN, Sept. 9.—Five divorces were granted yesterday in the Bucks County Court of Common Pleas.

Today a session of miscellaneous Quarter Sessions Court is being held with a number of plead guilty cases listed. An opinion was given in an action against a Morrisville sand company.

In the Court of Common Pleas, Judge Keller yesterday handed down an opinion in the case of Klementy Parlowicz and Nellie, his wife, George W. Hillman and Laura M. Hillman, his wife, Dragon Vender and Katherine, his wife, Rosie, against the United Sand and Gravel Company, ruling that the defendants, agents, servants and employees are perpetually enjoined and restrained from excavating and removing top soil, or the sand and gravel underneath, from any part of the 18-foot wide strip forming the eastern side of Royle avenue.

Judge Keller directed that the defendant be required to remove its fences, and other obstructions from Royle avenue and also to remove the sand and gravel piled thereon at or near its intersection with Hill avenue. The defendant is also ordered to fill in, replace and restore to its original and natural state and condition, the said Royle avenue for a width of 18 feet wherever the same has been excavated. The defendant is also directed by the Court to pay the costs.

The plaintiffs own a tract of land, "Riverside Estates," in the Fourth Ward of Morrisville.

Judge Calvin S. Boyer handed down four divorces and Judge Hiram H. Keller, one, as follows:

Helen Schell Frutchey, 139 Maple avenue, Langhorne, from her husband, Edward, of 1320 Orthodox street, Frankford. They were married Nov. 19, 1919, and separate later.

On grounds of cruel and barbarous treatment, Margaret L. Garrido, Pineville, was granted a divorce from Luzbel C. Garrido, of Mexico. They were married Sept. 25, 1928, and separated in August, 1939.

Shirley O. Nolan Dallett, Ferry St., New Hope, was granted a divorce from Morris Dallett, 25 Lutton Place South, New York City, on grounds of cruel and barbarous treatment. They were married Nov. 20, 1929, in Chestertown, Md., and separated in 1941.

On grounds of desertion, Esther M. MacGrath, Doylestown, R. D. 2, was

MAN KILLED OUTRIGHT WHEN HIT BY A HUGE TRAILER-TRUCK ABOVE TULLYTOWN; IS IDENTIFIED AS STANLEY SWIDRAK, 52

Driver of Vehicle Striking Falls Township Man Evidently Becomes Panic-Stricken—Leaves Scene, Claiming He Would Notify Police—Not Heard From By Mid-Morning

Eight hours after he was killed outright when struck by a truck tractor and semi-trailer as he walked along Bristol Pike above Tullytown the victim was identified this morning as Stanley Swidrak, aged about 52, of Penn Valley Road, Falls Township.

So badly mangled was the body, with many bones broken, that it was at first difficult to determine whether the victim was a youth or man of advanced years.

The driver of the truck striking the man, halted his vehicle, and returned to the scene with passersby, but evidently becoming panic-stricken when he saw the parts of the body strewn on the highway, and knowing he had killed someone, ran to his vehicle calling out that he would summon police. At mid-morning no word had been received by police from the driver.

It was shortly before one o'clock that the driver of the huge truck and semi-trailer was en route on Bristol Pike toward Trenton, above the twin bridges at Tullytown. It is believed that the victim was on the right side of the highway, walking toward traffic. Death was instantaneous.

Either in an attempt to avoid striking the man, or in his confusion, the driver of the truck pulled sharply to the left of the highway, and a small truck approaching from the opposite direction was said to be forced from the highway to avoid striking the first vehicle. In the second truck were three Bristol men, Eugene Armstrong, Edward DiRenzo, and a Mr. Cicciotti.

The trio of Bristolans later told Private Forestin of Pa. Motor Police, South Langhorne barracks, that the driver of the big truck informed them that he had hit someone. The four hurried back and when the driver of the death-truck saw the body strewn about he is said to have exclaimed: "My God! He's dead. I better call the police." With that exclamation he rushed to his truck, the Bristol men thinking he would summon help. The driver had not reported by mid-morning, and the Bristolans who remained at the scene until police arrived informed the officer of the type of truck which had struck the victim. An investigation was launched immediately to learn the names of the owner and operator.

The body of Swidrak was removed to the Horner funeral home in Langhorne.

A small booklet found on the body revealed some names and addresses. Among them was the name of "John Gancarz, Penn Valley Road." A visit was paid by authorities to the Gancarz home and the victim was at once identified. He had been employed by Gancarz as foreman for a laboring gang which was picking tomatoes on the Gancarz farm. Mr. Swidrak is a brother of Mrs. Gancarz. He is survived by.

Newark, O.—Bringing the known death toll to nine, two more bodies were recovered today from the ruins of three buildings virtually demolished by an Army bomber which crashed in a Newark street.

One of the bodies recovered was that of Mrs. Jane Weston, owner of one of the ruined buildings into which the plane's gasoline tank fell and exploded. The other body, which firemen did not find until after daylight today, was as yet unidentified.

W. P. A. Laborers Worked on 112 Miles of Road

Harrisburg—WPA laborers worked on nearly 112 miles of Bucks County highways during the last seven years, State Administrator Richard Irvin announced today.

The WPA construction program in Bucks County included 10 new bridges and improvements on seven others, he said.

The state laborers also laid 14.5 miles of new paved sidewalks and more than 15 miles of new curbs, constructed 20 new culverts and dug 15½ miles of road drainage ditches in Bucks County, Irvin said.

Plane Production Big

Cleveland—Undersecretary of War Robert P. Patterson today disclosed that America's plane production in August was larger than that of Germany, Italy and Japan combined and the output of tanks, medium and light, has reached an "impressive figure" which will be doubled in December.

Replying to criticism of America's war weapons, Patterson, speaking before the Convention of United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers, said that the medium U. S. tank is superior to the best German tank and strongly defended this country's fighting planes and bombers.

"Improvements are coming fast, both with us and with our foes," he said. "The situation may change at any time. We are putting our best efforts into bringing out new planes of design far superior to any that we have now, and we believe that we will be able to maintain and even to increase the lead which we have at present."

Taking up for American tanks, Patterson said that "there is not a word of truth" in statements that U. S. tanks are inferior to German machines. He asserted:

"In speed, in range, in toughness of armor, in hitting power of its guns, in all that it takes to make a good tank, our medium tank, either the M3 or the M4, is superior to the best German tank."

One Man's Opinion

By Walter Kiernan
(I. N. S. Staff Writer)

Well it's just like he said.

On April 27 he asked Congress to get up a new farm price bill and Congress didn't.

Now he says if Congress doesn't produce by Oct. 1 he will set farm prices himself.

That's fair enough. The present farm program was the Administration's baby and if it is time to take it off the bottle it's fair that the Administration should do it.

The "ever normal granary," the "parity prices," and all the rest of it came from Henry Wallace, and Claude Wickard has followed in his footsteps.

When the legislation passed, the vote was the vote of Congress but the voice was the voice of the prophet.

Those were the days of paying farmers not to raise crops, of plowing under the pigs, of taking productive acreage out of production.

Of course farm prices went up—that was the Administration idea. If now they are to come down it is proper that the Administration should bring them down.

Thought for the day: Legislate in haste, repent at leisure.

HARVEST NEARING END

The crop harvest on American farms is approaching the end of another season with granaries and storehouses bulging with the product of the soil. Farmers are faced with a herculean task in garnering the crops due to the paucity of help available. Farm labor is not to be had in many sections of the country, and there is little to be had anywhere. High wages in war industries have denuded the countryside of "hands."

Announcement from Washington that meat rationing impends directed the attention of city dwellers to the situation on the farms, with some apprehension. The latter is unfounded. The farms are coming through in all-out war effort in splendid style.

So bountiful has been the wheat crop that wheat is still piled on the ground in Kansas, with all available storage space filled. Canneries throughout the nation are processing more fruits and vegetables than ever before, although they, too, have encountered a labor shortage. Canneries cannot pay $100 per week for labor.

Tremendous amounts of foodstuffs are being shipped to the nation's armed forces all over the world, and another large segment of the current crop will go to England and to Russia as lease-lend material. The fact is that whereas quantities of practically all food items available in the United States are larger than last year, the need also is the greatest of all time. Food in enormous quantities is required on the home front by the armed forces, by the Allies.

Nor are plans for next year's crops, which must eclipse those of this year in all categories, being neglected. In the Department of Agriculture, in Washington, in state departments of agriculture, on the farms plans are being promulgated to plant more acres to foodstuffs and feedstuffs than ever before. Wherever possible improved methods will be followed to increase the yield. The amount of seed required for next spring's sowing will be tremendous. The labor situation on the farm next year will undoubtedly be alarming. But the American farmer is doing a great job in this war, as in all previous wars, and he will overcome every obstacle to still greater yields next year.

PETROLEUM PLANE

Eighty-three years ago Col. Edwin L. Drake drilled, on Oil Creek near Titusville, Pa., the first producing petroleum well. Less than forty years ago the Wrights, living two hundred miles west of Colonel Drake's well, made a machine fly.

Oil wells are now scattered over the globe; some of them the goal of battling nations. And in the vanguard of the struggle are winged warriors fighting for oil with oil. Below that vanguard oil is the power that is driving tanks forward. On sea and land, in factory and on farm it is making a new world.

In all his explorations for material gain man has found nothing more potential, in peace and in war than petroleum and the plane.

Yellowstone Park has ended another tourist season, with visitors totaling approximately one-third last year's number. Old Faithful couldn't compete with eruptions in Europe and Asia.

Uncle Sam has reached the point where his nephews have decided to give up all pretense of worrying about the old boy's debts.

COMMUNICATION

Haines Road, Box 475, September 5, 1942, Bristol, Pa.

Editor, The Bristol Courier, Beaver Street, Bristol, Pa.

Dear Sir:

Since a bicyclist has the right of way the same as a motorist, he should observe the same traffic rules and regulations, such as:

(a) Stopping at red lights.
(b) Riding on the right hand side of the road.

I have noticed many cyclists on the streets disregarding these rules, and I know it is very trying to motorists, especially when they are going to and from work.

Very truly yours,

ELIZABETH I. WILSON.

Pennsylvania Farm Roundup

By William Brockman

(U. S. Staff Correspondent)

HARRISBURG, Sept. 9.—(INS)—

The doctor should find little reason to visit Pennsylvania homes this Winter if there is any truth in the old adage that "an apple a day keeps the doctor away."

For 1954,900 bushels, or approximately one bushel of apples for each man, woman and child in the state, are expected to be harvested during the current season. Last year's orchards produced only 3,643,900 bushels while the previous five year average was 9,000,000 bushels.

Cows in Pennsylvania have done it again! Continuing their record-breaking pace inaugurated to meet war demands, the herds last month produced an average of 18.4 pounds of milk per animal, which is equal to the previous high record for that month. Contributing greatly to the heavy milk flow has been the excellent condition of pastures which at the beginning of August was the best for that date in 15 years.

Hens on Pennsylvania farms are cackling overtime to add their share to the nation's war effort. Despite a decline in number, hens and pullets in the Commonwealth maintained their record production last month by laying approximately 191,000,000 eggs, compared with 178,000,000 a year earlier.

Grape fanciers also have good news in store for them. The Federal-State Crop Reporting Service has announced that the crop in the Erie belt of Pennsylvania is expected to ripen at least two weeks ahead of last year's ripening period. The clusters are exceptionally large and the yield is expected to exceed that of last year by almost 6,300 tons.

Pennsylvania Dutch will have plenty of cabbage for their sauerkraut this winter. For, according to all indications, the present crop will produce approximately 55,800 tons or 5,600 tons more than in 1941. The 1942 crop is also much larger than the average for the past ten years, which was placed at 40,200 tons. Total production in the first section of the late-growing states, which includes Pennsylvania, is expected to approximate 40,200 tons, 11 per cent greater than the 1931-40 average.

Even weeds it seems, have their redeeming features. Long regarded by farmers as the most noxious of weeds, quackgrass makes good hay and produces two crops yearly, the State Department of Agriculture reveals. The grass, being a sweet pasture, is a favorite of cattle and its matted root-

A "No-Sugar" Dessert

By Frances Lee Eaton

You don't need to delect your stock of sugar for this fruit dessert. In fact, you need nothing but your fruit, some hot water, 2 packages of gelatin and a little time.

But the results are well worth while. You'll have a delicious chilled dessert that will cause no discomfort after the heaviest meal—a well-balanced, alkaline-reaction dessert that is "just what the doctor ordered."

Fresh Pear and Grape Dessert
1 package orange-flavored gelatin; 1 pint hot water; 1 cup halved white grapes, seeded; 1 cup dried fresh pears.

Dissolve gelatin in hot water. Chill. When slightly thickened, fold in fruit. Turn into mold. Chill until firm. Unmold. Serves 6.

scale. It will not be the price of food that will matter so much next year as the quantity and quality. The reasons for this prospective shortage are obvious.

THE CHIEF one, of course, is the fact that food in quantities greater than anyone ever thought possible will have to be sent abroad to feed our constantly expanding armed forces in all parts of the world. In addition, our allies depend now—and will depend more upon food supplies from this country. Another reason is the shortage of farm labor. Farmers and farm hands are getting more money in factories. Truck and railroad transportation is being curtailed and it is growing more difficult for farmers to get their stuff to market. In addition, adequate farm machinery and farm fertilizer will be almost unobtainable.

WHETHER it is called by that name or not, some sort of food administration is expected to be created soon, and the suggestion is that it probably will be under the Secretary of Agriculture, Mr. Claude Wickard. This business of food rationing is a complex and difficult proposition. It more closely affects more people than any other kind of rationing. The necessity of having it administered by a man of the greatest competence and experience is clear. It is one job that must not be bungled. It ought to be in the hands of a man in whom the people generally have confidence.

IT IS certainly doubtful that Mr. Wickard measures up to these requirements. He is a mediocre Cabinet officer whose name and career are unfamiliar to the bulk of the citizens. There is nothing in his record to create belief in his ability to swing so vast and vital a job. Conceding that the new Food Administrator should be a man of proven executive capacity as well as real experience, the name of former President Hoover will occur to most Americans as the logical choice. Mr. Hoover was Food Administrator under a Democratic President in the last war. In Belgium, prior to our entrance in the war, and after that war, in Russia, Poland and other countries, he distributed hundreds of millions of dollars worth of food to the starving people of many nations. Even among the most poisonous of the Hoover haters, there hardly will be one arise to dispute that in his business of food rationing and food distribution, he is the outstanding authority of the world. Mr. Hoover has his faults. He isn't a man of tact and he is a poor politician. Some of the criticisms of him as President were deserved; some were terribly unjust. But, when it comes to his competency as a food administrator there can be but one opinion.

—O—

FEW WILL contend that he is not the best qualified man in the country to handle this job now. If there is to be a food administrator, in Mr. Hoover we have one ready made, able, trained, equipped, experienced, willing. If we are to have a food administrator, to choose any other is to pass over the best man and pick an inferior man. Is it too much to ask of the President, faced with a national food shortage—as he undoubtedly will be in a few months—that he sink his political hates, rise above his personal prejudices and call upon the man he cannot help but know is best qualified to do this job? Nothing would so enhance Mr. Roosevelt's reputation as a patriotic leader, willing to subordinate every personal interest to win the war. Nothing would so indelibly stamp him as a small, vindictive man as his failure to do so.

Pilgrim in MANHATTAN by MARGARET BELL HOUSTON

SYNOPSIS

Following her mother's death, Chloe Cameron, just 22 and fired with ambition to become a writer and entertainer, leaves her hometown of Wahalla, Oklahoma, and the opportunity to marry Nate Barlow, the town banker. She hopes to find a publisher for her book, "Songs of the Trail" and also sing her own cowboy and Indian songs. But her book is rejected and, after a vain tour of the theatrical agencies, Chloe takes a secretarial position with the Samuels' Bureau of Entertainment. There she meets Rann Sturgis, prominent lawyer, when he comes in search of entertainers for a Society party. He leaves without taking any of Samuels' numbers, but says he may be able to use the "Jack Rabbit Girl" (Chloe's own specialty, which she had offered as last resort) later. Chloe did not mention that she was the "Jack Rabbit Girl." That night, Chloe phones Rann to tell him he left his pen at her office. He is out so she leaves a message for him to call her. Returning from the store later, Chloe meets Hugh Richards, the young man who has the apartment next to hers in Greenwich Village. He is rain-soaked and haggard. He asks permission to go through her apartment to his for his belongings, as Brock, the superintendent, locked him out. About to leave, he collapses from hunger in Chloe's apartment. When he comes to, she insists that he change his wet clothes and stay for dinner. The superintendent finds him there when he goes in search of a leak. Despite Hugh's weakened condition, he orders him out. Chloe upbraids Brock for his unkindness and begs Hugh to go to a hospital.

CHAPTER EIGHT

"Your phone's ringing," Brock said to Chloe.

Hugh Richards was beside it. Chloe nodded as he glanced at her, and he had his things down on the desk and picked up the receiver.

"Hello," he said. And then, incredulously, "What?"

He put the receiver down and looked at Chloe.

"He says it's Rann Sturgis."

"I'll take it," said Chloe.

Chloe went to the telephone.

"Mr. Sturgis?" It seemed an answer to prayer. "Did you lose a pen this afternoon?"

"Yes," with a slightly inquiring inflection.

Hugh Richards had sat down beside his bags and was thrusting his clothes inside.

"A gold pen?" Chloe, at the telephone, pressed on.

"With an onyx cap and band," Sturgis added.

How business-like he sounded! He hadn't been like that this afternoon.

"Well, I found it," said Chloe. "In the Samuels Entertainment Bureau after you left."

"That's very kind of you. Is this the young lady?"

"This is 'Chloe Cameron, the girl you talked with.'"

"Thank you very much, Miss Cameron." Her voice had altered somewhat. "I thought I'd lost it in a cab."

"If you will come tonight..." said Chloe.

Brock went toward the door, carrying the bags. Hugh Richards following him. Richards paused in the door.

"Thank you," he said in a low voice.

Chloe signaled him to wait, but he went on.

"Not tonight," Sturgis had answered. "I'm rather rushed. I'll pick it up at your office." And he thanked her again.

Paintings and Antiques To Be Included at Flower Show

CHALFONT, Sept. 9.—The committee in charge tomorrow will start receiving entries for the Bucks Tri-County Flower and Art Show, to be conducted at Forest Park, here, on September 11th, 12th and 13th. The Chalfont Flower Club is in charge.

First and second prizes in each class are money; with ribbons as third prizes. Prizes and arrangements will be arranged by a special committee for the judging in Section F, which will be for paintings and antiques. A grand prize is to be awarded to the best exhibit of each section.

Displays will be shown by children under 16 as well as by adults, and there will also be a section for paid gardeners, professionals and commercial.

The show is to be open to the public from six until 10 p. m., on Friday; and from 10 a. m. until 10 p. m., on Saturday and Sunday.

Today's Quiet Moment

(By the Rev. James R. Gailey)
Pastor, Bristol Presbyterian Church.
We are truly grateful unto thee, O God, for the coming of thine only Son into the world, for the gracious words He spake, for the merciful work He did, for His bitter passion and atoning sacrifice upon the cross at Calvary, and for His mighty resurrection from the dead. We are ever thankful unto thee for the forgiveness of our sins through Him, for the means of Grace revealed unto us, for the indwelling of Thy Holy Spirit and for the life everlasting. May these tremendous blessings of thine be known and accepted by all men everywhere; through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

SUNDAY DINNER
Suggestions

No matter how many rationed items loom on the horizon, Americans still remain the most fortunate people in the world and when they sit down to that time-honored institution Sunday dinner, enjoy many foodstuffs which have become almost non-existent in Europe.

Even with an allotment of but two and a half pounds of meat a week, the American diet will not be noticeably restricted. There is still plenty of poultry, an abundance of meat substitutes and fresh vegetables and fruits.

This week the most attractively priced fruits are avocados, apples, limes, oranges and peaches. Among good buys in vegetables are green beans, cabbage, corn, eggplant, greens, onions, peppers and squash.

There is little change in meat prices, with lamb and chicken the better buys. Prices are moderate on frozen fillets which are available in fair quantities.

Planned by Vivian Whaley, director of the A & P Kitchen, the following menus are suggested for Sunday dinner:

Low Cost Dinner

Stuffed Green Peppers
Creamed Potatoes
Steamed Cabbage
Carrot and Apple Salad
Enriched Bread
Gingerbread and Coffee

Medium Cost Dinner

Fried Chicken with Cream Gravy
Whipped Potatoes
Buttered Squash
Carrot Sticks and Celery
Enriched Bread
Peach Betty
Iced Tea

Very Special Dinner

Stuffed Tomato Salad
Braised Veal Steak with Mushrooms
Potato Souffle
Fresh Succotash
Enriched Bread
Custard Pie
Coffee

Mrs. Edward Zrenner, Gutenberg,

N. J., was a guest last week of her brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Michael Petrick, Wilson avenue.

Mrs. D. W. Pollard and children Helen and Charles, Harrison street, have returned from a five weeks' visit with relatives at Lafayette, Ind. Mr. Pollard joined his family at Lafayette and spent ten days with them.

Mrs. Mary Walters, Cleveland street, has received word that her son, John Bills, has arrived safely in Iceland.

Sgt. Teoh, Maurice G. Wildman, of the 35th Ordnance Co., Fort Jackson, S. C., spent Friday until Sunday with his aunt, Mrs. Mary G. Quicksell, Dorrance street.

ON THE SCREENS

GRAND THEATRE

Catchy music, fantastic situations and a unique romance blend into fascinating entertainment in "I Married An Angel," based on the Broadway stage hit, and serving as the latest co-starring vehicle for Jeanette MacDonald and Nelson Eddy.

The picture, now playing at the Grand Theatre, is literally a fantasy set to music. Eddy plays a wealthy playboy who dreams he marries an angel, the latter being Miss MacDonald, who in his waking hours is a timid country girl employed at his bank.

The angelic bride turns out to be anything but angelic. She won't lie, so tells disconcerting truths about his business and his associates.

BRISTOL THEATRE

John Wayne, currently co-starred with Marlene Dietrich and Randolph Scott in "The Spoilers" at the Bristol Theatre, was a U. S. C. football player at the time, with a summer vacation job as prop boy on a movie set.

Ford, who is always cooking up some practical joke, asked the young husky to show him how to "buck" in a football line. As Wayne began to take his crouch, the director tripped him and he fell face flat into a thick, oozy mess of composition mud. The company roared.

RITZ THEATRE

Portraying a foreign correspondent, who enlists in the Navy to get a crack at the Japs, Lee Bowman is seen in his first romantic lead in "Pacific Rendezvous," now playing at the Ritz Theatre. Zazu Pitts is afraid she is going to become one of Hollywood's sophisticated ladies. In a recent picture at the Hal Roach Studios she was given, for the first time, a very fancy wardrobe. In the comedy "Miss Polly," now at the Ritz Theatre, the quavery-voiced comedienne becomes a "femme fatale" out to get her man!

A Message from the Doctors

An appeal is being made to the public to help conserve the time and energy of their doctors. There are more than 1600 Pennsylvania doctors now serving in the armed forces of the United States and soon there will be more than twice as many.

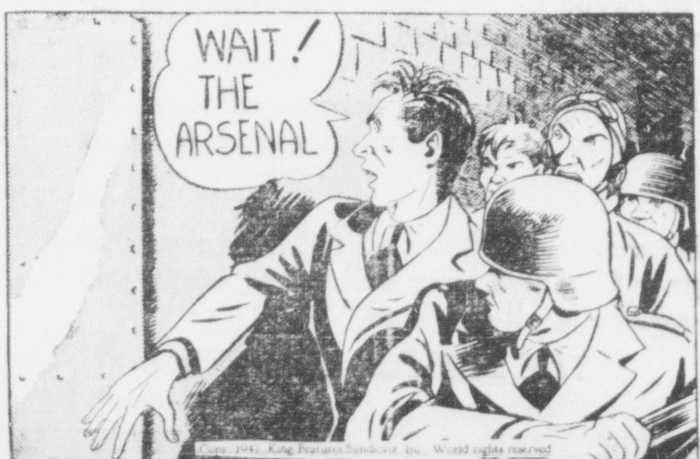

Bucks County has lost a good many physicians and will lose more. Besides, the population has greatly increased. The health and well being of the civilian population is of utmost importance in the war effort and this can best be conserved if consideration is given to the following suggestions:

Do not have your doctor come to your house to see patients who could readily come to the office. Avoid evening and night calls whenever possible. Remember that early morning fever and illness is likely to increase later in the day and that the family's fears increase as night approaches. Please call the doctor early in the morning and do not wait until he has gone past your house once or more before you let him know you need him. This will save tires, gasoline, time and strength, and permit of better service to all.

VOLTZ JUNIORS WIN 1ST GAME IN SERIES TO PICK CHAMPIONS

"Art" Goheen Pitches One-Hit Game and Defeats Third Ward

FINAL SCORE IS 7 TO 0

Next Game Will Be Played On St. Ann's Field, Thursday Night

Behind the one-hit pitching of Art Goheen, the Voltz-Junior team scored a 7-0 victory over the Third Ward nine last night in the first game of the round-robin tournament of the Diamond Youth League. The game was played on St. Ann's field.

Goheen's fast curve had the Pikers popping up all night and for five innings he held the Warders hitless. Then with one out in the sixth, Joe Elmer lined a hit into right field. Goheen then proceeded to mop up the remaining batters.

Not only did Goheen pitch the Voltz boys to victory but his stick and that of Gene Fanni paved the way for the batting power. Goheen had three hits out of four trips up and Fanni had two out of two drawing two passes.

Goheen drove in three runs and scored twice himself. Fanni proved a Ty Cobb on the bases by stealing four bags. Fanni, behind the plate for the winners, also nipped two would-be base stealers.

Although charged with two errors, Marvin Collins, stood out on the defense for the winners. In the fourth, he prevented two Third Ward runs from scoring with a nice running catch of Elmer's short fly to left field and in the following inning with two runners on again, he picked up Simon's hit which was deflected by Goheen and whipped it over to first in time for the put-out.

The tourney continues on St. Ann's field, Thursday night, with Voltz-Texaco meeting the Franklin A. C.

per week, and the chief's from $35 to $40. Several months ago Council granted them a $2 per week increase, and now they ask for a $5 increase.

After discussing the matter more than an hour, the motion was seconded and a roll call vote asked. When several members stated that they were not yet ready to vote, Mr. Pease made a motion to table the matter until the next meeting. This motion was carried, with but one dissenting vote.

During the discussion many existing conditions were aired. One Councilman said that the police might be more alert, and that the mileage on the police car might be held down.

When asked why there were so few arrests the chief said it was because Council did not back up the police when arrests were made, and councilmen and business men interfered too often in efforts to have cases squashed.

The department was also asked to hear down on the numerous bicycle violations in order to check the hazardous practice of riding on the pavements, riding without lights, etc. Fines for these violations range from $2.50 to $5.00.

At the close of the meeting, and from the trend of the conversation, it was generally believed that on next month's report many arrests may be listed.

Post 4 has a supply of other equipment alongside the Avast Achim Synagogue on Pond street, and Post 3 has its equipment on the property of Freeman Baylies, just off a driveway leading from Wood street to the Baylies property.

Items to be found there when and if wardens need them are: first aid kits, blankets, stretchers, picks, axes, shovels, rope, crow-bars, lanterns, etc. Approximately four blocks are protected by the equipment so placed.

SCHOOL GRID TEAMS FACE WAR SEASON FOR FIRST TIME

Bristol and Bensalem Are The First District Elevens To Start Practice

TWO SCHOOLS QUIT

Fallsington and Newtown Disband For the Duration; Langhorne to Try

By Jack Gill

War-time football strikes organized scholastic gridiron ranks for the first time this year and prospects of a usual season have already been swept into oblivion. Abnormal times have created burdensome transportation difficulties and many young coaches have disrupted established set-ups by enlisting in the armed forces.

Locally, the situation has been slightly upset. Bristol, first team to get underway, has hopes of seeing its schedule completely carried out. Although they still await final confirmation from four rivals, they believe they will hear from them before the season starts.

Bensalem started practice yesterday and Coach Woody Wetherhold began penciling a badly shattered schedule. Listed to travel to far away Boyertown this year, which is in the vicinity of Pottsville, the Owls were forced to forego that jaunt. Owing to the cancellation of football by two other foes, the Bensalemites find their card muddled.

Fallsington and Newtown both cancelled the gridiron sport for the duration. They gave as their reason the lack of transportation facilities. Newtown won the "Little Four" conference last year and was coached by Walt Eaton, Ithaca College alumnus. Fallsington, tutored by veteran Mike DeRisi, will stress intra-mural gridiron activity to the limit.

Undecided Langhorne has the boys guessing. Up until last week they had formulated plans to attempt to continue wherever possible. Superintendent William A. Thomas late last Summer indicated that they were sure of playing Bensalem, Morrisville, Bristol, and George School. Rather than surrender the sport the boys enjoy so much, the Redskins planned to use public buses to meet their traditional foes if necessary.

However, it was intimated yesterday that they had not notified Bensalem of their intention to carry out their obligations. So until they officially start practice, fans will await their announcement.

Morrisville is definitely planning to maintain its complete card. The protégés of John Hoffman haven't started practice as yet, but intend to limber up next week when school starts.

Most of the smaller schools have curtailed competitive sports for the duration. Buckingham, Yardley, New Hope, Southampton and Richboro all tossed the towel on the field at the final meeting of the Lower Bucks County Scholastic Conference last Spring. None of them played football, however, although several competed each Fall in soccer play.

The PIAA, state governing body on school athletics, of which all local schools are members, recently made a plea to the effect that it was their hope that all teams could continue along active lines. In some remote instances they called upon community co-operation in assisting the teams by pooling private cars.

Owing to the fact that most area institutions do not own their buses, but rather rent them from operators for the school semester, the use of such vehicles is prohibited. As long as finances permit them to do so, most of them plan to use rail and buses to continue.

An increase in gate receipts will be required to adopt such a policy. With college games moving into metropolitan centers and with the Old Grads perusal of his favorite alma mater's games somewhat out of the question, it is expected that more attention will be turned to home town high school games.

Pennsylvania was the birthplace of our country. It is also the state which has contributed the largest number of native born citizens to the rest of the nation. In the early years of our history, the great westward-flowing tide of American migration first spent itself in the agricultural areas of Bucks, Berks, Delaware, Chester, Lancaster, York and Lebanon Counties in the southeast of Pennsylvania. It then spread west throughout the heavily forested areas of the Alleghenies until the population of our State was as great as a pioneer economy could support. Then from Pittsburgh and Brownsville, whose early name was Redstone Old Fort, the great tide of westbound migration moved down the Ohio into Kentucky and the territory north of the Ohio.

In Pennsylvania was bred a large part of that rugged pioneer stock which settled once and for all, in the Battle of Point Pleasant, the question of whether all the territory east of the Mississippi should be American or European. In the middle of the last century, Pennsylvania contributed a large share of the great numbers who moved west toward the gold fields of California. Throughout its history Pennsylvania has always exported people to the less densely settled parts of our country, and it is safe to say that many of the qualities of enterprise and industry which have become typical of our country are marks of that same heritage which among those who remained at home has made the production of the Keystone State so vital to the national welfare.

Millions of Pennsylvanians have moved west, but many more millions have remained on their own native soil, so that the Keystone State is today the second in point of population in our country and the first in the number of its native white citizens of native parentage.

In 1790, when the area of the United

Mrs. Edward Martin A Good Soldier, Too

When General Edward Martin, Republican candidate, is elected Governor of Pennsylvania this November, that forbidding brick pile on North Front St., Harrisburg, known as the Executive Mansion is assured the skilful ministrations of a competent and kindly First Lady.

The comings and goings of great political figures for many years have been as much everyday occurrences to Charity Scott Martin as washing the dinner dishes in her Washington, Pennsylvania, house, or tending her vegetable and flower gardens.

Four calls to a nation's armed service have disturbed the tranquility of the Martin home. The ups and downs of a generation of business and politics have rippled its placid surface from time to time over the years. The quiet, understanding wife of Edward Martin has taken all those things calmly and evenly. So will she shoulder the burdensome duties and heavy responsibilities of being Pennsylvania's First Lady.

Charity Martin, whom a young lawyer wed in 1908 after returning from Spanish-American war service in the Philippines, and to whom his troth was pledged when he quit Waynesburg College to enter the service as a boy in 1898, is a wife rather than a public figure.

In all the years her husband has served as a leader of his party, as Auditor General and State Treasurer of the Commonwealth, and as the Commander of Pennsylvania's 28th Division, Mrs. Martin has made but one public address—and she says it was such a terrifying experience she never wants to do it again.

"It looked so easy, too," she recalls ruefully. Yet the wife of Edward Martin is gifted with no small measure of political wisdom. It could not be otherwise with her four decades of close familiarity with the shifting political picture of her native State, and her husband's closeness to the inner workings of the governmental scene.

More often than anyone knows General Martin seeks her advice in the evening quiet of their Washington County home—and more often even than he realizes, perhaps, the common sense and sound wisdom of the housewife solves a knotty tangle of intricate State affairs. But always, unobtrusively, Mrs. Martin holds her advice until it is sought.

Her multiple hobbies are her home, her flower and kitchen gardens, and her collection of pitchers. The latter would arouse the envy of any antiquarian or collector, and her gardens are the envy of her Washington neighbors.

Both she and the General hasten proudly to show visitors their collection of domestic glassware, which lines spacious china closets in the big dining room. Prudently Mrs. Martin insists on acquiring thirteen of each pattern, against the unlucky day when one be broken. But those days are far between in the well-ordered Martin household.

All the talk of the tribulations that beset a housewife in the old-fashioned inconveniences of the Executive Mansion at Harrisburg do not dismay Charity Martin.

"A home is a home," is her philosophy. "It doesn't matter much whether it is big or little, modern or old-fashioned, convenient or inconvenient. If you live there, its home—and home is always a lovely place."

act prediction of the future population of any single state, though for the nation as a whole, a close estimate may be made. By constructing a table of life expectancy, the State Planning Board of the Department of Commerce has, however, been able to arrive at an estimate of what Pennsylvania's population would be in 1950 if the factor of migration were eliminated.

If no one came into the State and no one moved out of it, with health conditions remaining substantially what they were in 1940 and if the birth rate does not vary substantially from that of 1940, Pennsylvania's population would be 10,493,460 by 1950. The population of the Commonwealth would also be definitely older. In 1940 the median age group is that between ages 25 and 29. In 1950 the median age group will be that between 30 and 35. The number of persons over 45 would be greater than the number under age 20.

Air Raid Wardens and Emergency Policemen:

You Air Raid Wardens and Emergency Police are doing a fine job.

You are working for the protection of others, and to safeguard the property of others.

You realize your responsibility to the community and are conscious of the fact that you may be called upon to render service not to your liking; but a service which in European countries has proven to be of inestimable value.

There are critics who are standing on the sidelines.

Some of these critics laugh at the efforts you are putting forth.

They laugh at air-raid drills and blackout tests. They seem to think that it is all a joke.

When asked to help, their reply is: "Oh, I'm not interested. Can't you get someone else? I'm terribly busy." Many so answering have never been known to take much interest in community affairs. They were never the ones who would join in and help put over a project for the benefit of the community. They were generally to be found on the sidelines, not cheering but razzing. Their razzing was perhaps in a jocular manner but they appeared to be endeavoring to belittle the movement.

Every community has this type of resident. Their scope of interest is rather narrow and they are self-satisfied.

But, Mr. and Mrs. Air-Raid Warden and Emergency Policeman, you have recognized your duty to your community and to your fellow man.

Don't let the scoffers dissuade you. Work all the harder so that when the time comes, and pray God that time will never come, you will be prepared to render a service to all mankind.
